

Alternative Land

In an alternative land
Everything could seem so bland.
The sky and the sea being grey
And the grass also grows that way.

But all I have seen is grass
That grows green.
And sea and sky that is blue
Of every conceivable hue.